

18 degree of Aquarius: 'A man unmasked'

A mask serves two functions: the obvious one of hiding the face, thus concealing a person's identity; the other to provide a new identity, to give a different, fake impression of oneself.

Here the mask has been torn from the face revealing the real person disguised behind it.

The unmasked man has really been given an opportunity to be himself at last, to stop hiding from the world, and so begin a new chapter in his life. An image of moving from untruth to truth, from a pretended to a more authentic life.
